Hi Micah,

I am cc'ing Steve Mason with this email. He is supper busy not, but circle back around with his contact and cc me on this question. He has contact. Otherwise, google LEPC for Dallas County and see if you can find a point of contact. Also, local fire chief will probably have this local info. It would be good if you could reach out to the fire Chiefs so they have better idea of resources you provide in a disaster.

Hi Patrick,

I am one of the specialists here at the North Texas Poison Control in Dallas. In light of the chemical plant fire in Deer Park, we are putting together a "Disaster Binder" here at our center that will contain relevant information regarding potentially toxic substances/chemicals so that we can be better prepared in case of a local event or emergency. Our medical director, Dr. Brett Roth, suggested that I reach out to you to obtain a list of the chemical plants in our area and the chemicals that they have stored there so we can be sure to include information specific to those substances. Is this something that you could provide us with? Thank you.

Micah Click, BSN, RN
